TV program

Ok, I am going to talk about the TV program named Day Day Up, a popular Chinese talk show broadcast on the Hunan satellite TV. The show is co-hosted by Wang Han, and some other popular stars. The talk show was designed to play an active role in conveying [kən'veiɪŋ] 输送; 传输 traditional Chinese values to viewers in order to promote harmony in Chinese society. The program has drawn great attention from the public especially student groups and other young people for its hilarious [hɪ'leəriəs] humor, style, and the adorable public figures who appear as guests.

What set Day Day Up apart from conventional talk shows is that it contains a combination of Guest Show and Talk Show, for example: dancing, singing and all other stage performance are usually combined together with the humorous interactions between the youthful brother-like hosts with the guests and the lively audiences. While apart from the great entertainment, the show will always educate everyone involved, like the presented audience as well as those watched in front of TV or PC screens.

It's very entertaining, interesting and harmless. Every week I will watch that TV program with my roommates. It does give up the positive attitude for life.

How TV show influence our life?

Critics of television claim that TV takes away too much of our free time so that we lack time for other activities like family conversations, reading, getting exercise.

Television contributes to our education and knowledge. Documentaries and information programs give us insight on nature, our environment and political events.

Sports attract the biggest audiences on television. TV stations pay enormous amounts of money to broadcast big sport events, like the Olympic Games, or professional basketball, football and baseball.
